

We do NOT think New Jersey's consumer protection laws should be weakened. It is every person's right to choose who they receive unsolicited sales calls from. That is why we have a law like the Do Not Call List. Since, the law is now under attack from telemarketers who want the ability to call people despite the fact that they have signed up for the 'Do Not Call' list, what is the use of signing up for something like that? That means regular people like us have no protection against big telemarketing companies and just have to put up with the unwanted calls at the most inconvenient times of the day and week.